Abigail Mackay is deeply interested in recognizing every individual's potential to raise the standard of humanity's welfare, to see that God is at all times and in every place showing each one of us the way to achieve this. As a teenager, Abigail had a strong inclination toward spiritual healing which led eventually to her current work as a Christian Science practitioner. Before reaching this goal, her desire to help others overcome limitations led her into the field of education. She has taught in a variety of countries at institutions designed to accommodate and support disadvantaged learners.
